Successful Strategies for IPv6 Rollouts. Really

The IPv6 format is not backwards compatible with IPv4 since an IPv4-only host doesn't have the 128 bits of address space needed to refer to an IPv6-only destination. It is therefore necessary to implement a dual-stack design that allows hosts to speak to either protocol for the period that both are in use. Eventually, address space will not be available for additional IPv4 hosts, and IPv6-only hosts will become necessary. Hopefully, ISPs will be able to implement IPv6 support before the actual exhaustion of IPv4 addresses, but it will be necessary to allow for dual-mode operation for some years to come. Read the article written by Thomas A. Limoncelli, Google, with an introduction by Vinton Cerf, the co-inventor of TCP/IP at <http://goo.gl/JaAe1>

System Administration Soft Skills

System administration can be both stressful and rewarding. Stress generally comes from outside factors such as conflict between SAs (system administrators) and their colleagues, a lack of resources, a high-interrupt environment, conflicting priorities, and SAs being held responsible for failures outside their control. What can SAs and their managers do to alleviate the stress? There are some well-known interpersonal and time-management techniques that can help, but these can be forgotten in times of crisis or just through force of habit. The purpose of this article is to restate these maxims and remind readers of these important soft skills, particularly as they apply to SAs. Read it at <http://goo.gl/Q1NnU>
